Sir,

With reference to your letter No: G. 7591-3/Sany. dated the 6th October 1920, regarding the establishment of Grain Banks in the District, I have the honour to state that the subject was placed before the Malnad Improvement Committee at their meeting held on 22nd January 1921, and a copy of the resolution passed thereon is submitted herewith for information. It is reported that a large number of such Banks was started when Mr. Sri Narasimha Sastri was the Amildar of the Taluk, and that many of these are not now in a flourishing condition. It is also reported by the Sagar Sub Division Officer, that eight Grain Banks have been registered in the Sub Division in connection with the co-operative movement, but they are reported as not yet brought into working order. The great difficulty in the way of satisfactory working of these Banks is the lack of men with sufficient breadth of vision and managing capacity. A copy of an interesting report received on the subject from the Inspector of Co-operative Societies, Sagar Circle is submitted for information.

The

The Sub Division Officer, Shimoga has been requested to study the conditions of the Banks at Channagiri and report on the ways and means for resuscitating these Banks. The question is still in an experimental stage and the life history of the existing institutions has to be studied more thoroughly before any movement for largely increasing these institutions is launched.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

With reference to your Office No: C.1008/Rev.20-21 dated 30th October 1920 forwarding letter No: C.64/M.I.20-21 received from the Chairman, Malnad Improvement Committee, Shimoga District, I beg to state that with regard to the establishment of Grain Banks, the Department of Co-operation has already taken steps to organise Co-operative Grain Banks in the marginally noted places in the Circle under my charge. Already as many as eight co-operative Grain Banks have been registered but none of them has yet started work. Desirable places have no doubt been selected but the greatest difficulty has been experienced by the Officers of the Department to start the work of the Grain Banks already registered. The greatest trouble the Department of Co-operation has experienced so far is in securing proper men on the ground of capacity and fitness to whose care the Grain Banks may be committed. It has therefore now become necessary on the part of both organisers and promoters to devote serious thought to co-operative propaganda of this kind mainly for two reasons. Firstly, for a propaganda to be really vigorous and successful it is necessary that those who carry it on should be sincere for sincere advocacy of a cause can arise only out of a conviction that the cause is good. Secondly, for a propaganda to be most effective, the agency carrying it on should be unofficial. Officials can hardly command the same confidence of the people as non-officials who are more or less known for selfless work. Officials may sometimes be actuated by that enthusiasm born of faith in a high purpose, broad vision, and strict adherence to ideals which ought to characterise the advocates of the movement. Yet the people are inclined and not unnaturally to take them at a discount for the mere reason that they receive a pecuniary reward for their services. But the non-officials can command good confidence as honorary officers to whom the management of these Co-operative Grain Banks may be entrusted. They are supposed to work entirely gratuitously; but then, there is a danger that the ideals may be lost sight of especially with the expansion of the movement - unless a proportionate number of educated and sincere workers be forthcoming. Therefore not only is it necessary that co-operators should increase in number but that they should be able to attract and keep amongst themselves the very best men available to whose care may be committed these Grain Banks. What is needed is in each locality half a dozen gentlemen with education and sufficient patriotism and care for their fellow countrymen to be willing to devote half their time and energies to the foundation and management of such Banks. Given the effort and the self-sacrifice the results must follow. In any case, suffice it to say that so long as these organisations owe their birth to ideas of help and co-operation evolved among the people themselves in consequence of their practical familiarity with the nature and requirements of co-operative credit these institutions if at all they be started will be healthy and capable of growth and further expansion; otherwise they are destined to prove worse than unsuccessful.

2. The Establishments of Grain Banks is certainly a good means to bring the producers and consumers together. Producers' Societies are the special glory of French Co-operation as consumers' Societies have been in England on Agricultural Credit Societies in Germany. They are extremely flourishing; they have been of the utmost help in national economics and they play a political part of no little importance. But Mysore stands on the threshold of the great new movement for organising this class of Societies; and as such both State aid and State Control would appear to become inevitable and desirable on political as well as on economic grounds. But even if Government defer action, I am hopeful that the movement will prosper if Co-operators should lose no time in examining how best their organisation can be utilised for initiating an energetic campaign for fighting famines and thus relieving agriculturists from the heavy economic loss which famines leave in their trail. Thus it is very essential to secure sincere Co-operators before the Government contemplates establishing Grain Banks. While there are comprehension schemes under the consideration of the Government, I may be permitted to suggest that the creation of a standing Committee of leading Co-operators will perhaps be a move in the right direction, and provided the Committee is constituted on a representative basis and is endowed with definite functions and duties it should, it may be hoped, lead to the establishment of a self-governing organisation which will in future direct the policy of the movement and control its internal affairs.

3. Personally, I cannot feel very hopeful of the success of these Grain Banks as they exist now. for with a truth which has already been not very successfully exemplied in this Province, I beg to add that if the Co-operators have no larger vision with regard to their purpose these Grain Banks will be a complete failure.

4. The Department of Co-oneration will of course be willing to give any assistance that is required by organisers and promoters.
